The Star and Sentinel.

WAS WILL CARE?

Who will care?
When we lie beneath the daisies,
Under-neath the churchyard mould,
And the long grass o'er our faces
Lays it fingers damp and cold;
When we sleep from care and sorrow,
And the ills of early life—
Sleep, to know no sad to-morrow,
With its bitterness of strife—
Who will care?
Who will care?

Who will come to weep above us,
Lying oh! so low and still,
Underneath the skies of summer,
When all nature's pulses thrill,
To a new life, rapid and tender,
Full of beauty, rich and sweet,
And the world is clad in splendor
That the years shall ever greet—
Who will care?
Who will care?

Who will think of us as hands lying
On a still and silent breast,
Nevermore to know of sighing,
Evermore to know of rest?
Who will care? None can tell us,
But it rest and peace be still,
Will it matter if they miss us,
Or if they miss us not at all?
Not at all!

MRS. STERLING'S RECEPTION.

"When thou makest a dinner or supper call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors."

"And so we are really settled in our own house. It seems too good to be true, don't it?"

As John Stirling's pretty wife was speaking, she let down the soft, heavy falling brocatelle curtains of the handsome room, half parlor, half library, where she sat with her husband, turned on a little more gas, so that the Italian peasant girl, and the dark, bright Spanish woman, on the alabaster shade of the deep light, might display their beauties yet more glowingly, and then seated herself in a little easy chair, beside the lounge where her husband lay stretched out in the enjoyment of the masculine comforts—evening ease and household sovereignty. Taking up a dainty bit of bright colored knitting, she went on.

"It was very nice, to be sure, boarding at mother's, but it was a sort of vacant life, after all. This is so much better. I have something to do now."

John Stirling smiled.

"And something to govern. After all, I believe it is the love of power that makes you women so delight in homes of your own. I don't doubt, gentle as you women seem, that your servants find you as austere as the Great Mogul."

"I declare, John, you are too bad; I never scold and I am sure everything has gone on so nicely since we have been here—"

"A whole week and all the brooms new. But don't look sober. I have every confidence in your ability to keep the wheel in motion."

She sat silent a while, until her husband began to wonder to hear her voice again, and rallied her from her abstraction.

"What is it, little one? You seem in a brown study about something. Remember, I'm your prime minister, and must know all the state secrets and cares of government."

"I was only wondering, John, whether you would see a certain matter as I do. Do you realize how many parties we went to while we were at mother's? There were the Hurlbuts asked us three times, and the Graysons twice, and you know we went everywhere."

John Stirling knew that very well. Somewhat reserved in nature gave to those of his own household, and not fond of general society, going to a continual round of parties had been one of the sacrifices he had made during the first winger of his marriage, to please his gay little wife. The idea crossed his mind, as she spoke, that she, too, had wearied of so much excitement, and was going to propose, for the future, a quieter life.

"Yes, I liked it," she said, with a little embarrassment, for her woman's intuition divined the course his thoughts had taken. "I was only thinking, John, that having accepted so many invitations, every one would say we were mean if we did not give at least one large party in return. It would be just the time now, don't you see? Everything we have is fresh and new—our drawing rooms are really elegant! I should so like to gather our friends round us, and give a sort of house warming."

"That's a primitive, comfortable sounding term, Nellie. How much would this friendly little affair cost us?"

"Oh, I've thought it all over. We should have to ask every one we know. It wouldn't do to slight any; besides the more the merrier, you know. We could have Smith get up the supper and furnish the decorations. His bill would be about three hundred and fifty dollars—say fifty more for music, and a new dress for me."

"Five hundred dollars, eh, Nellie?"

"Yes, I'm sure I could make five hundred do it handsomely. I could send out the invitation for week after next."

"Well dear, you must let me dream over it. I really didn't know receptions were such expensive affairs. Five hundred dollars for an evening's entertainment, and the prospect of a hard winter, and much suffering among the poor. Well, I'll tell you in the morning. If I can make up my mind that it is right, you shall have the party."

The rest of the evening was a little constrained. The young wife, seeing that her husband did not care to talk about the reception any more just then, struggled bravely to avoid the subject, and, inasmuch as it held possession of all her thoughts, was rather an absent minded companion.

That night, after his wife was quietly asleep beside him, John Stirling spent an hour of not untroubled thought. Unlike Nellie, he had been brought up in a quiet country home, where five hundred dollars would have been thought by no means inadequate provision for the support of the whole family during the entire year. Was it right, could it be right to spend it upon one evening's entertainment, for the sake, too, of people who would be in no wise benefited by it—whose choicest pleasures were so common that they had already palled upon their senses? But then, as his wife had suggested, they had been out so much—would not this drawing back from a return for civilities look very mean? And—John Stirling shrank, with all the pride of a sensitive man, from the imputation of meanness. They were not rich. True, his capital was his own, and his business was good; but he had not felt that he could spend more than three thousand a year on home expenses and here was five hundred extra upon which he had not counted, coming at once. Surely he could not dare, for such a cause, to stint his contributions for the relief of the suffering? Nellie, the indulged child of wealthy parents, knew nothing of such anxious thoughts; she only heard the result in the morning. Before he gave her his good-by kiss, he said in a tone a little more sober than he meant it should be:

"Well, dear, you shall have your party. You can begin making your arrangements at once. Hear is a hundred dollars for the feminine adornments; I will pay Smith and the music afterwards."

That was ill. John Stirling had a sunny, even-tempered wife, and when he had made up his mind to grant his wife the indulgence she craved, it would not have been like him to spoil her pleasure by any indication of dissatisfaction. Still, as I have hinted, her intuitions were strong and her nature sensitive and impressible, and she had a certain sense of having persuaded her husband somewhat against his own wishes that rather disinclined her to commence her preparations. It was nearly eleven o'clock before she dressed herself for the shopping expedition. She was just tying the strings of her elegant fall hat when she heard a ring at the door, and presently a servant came in with the information that a child, who had brought home some sewing waited to see her.

Mrs. Stirling was motherly by instinct, and her heart warmed at once to the shy little creature who came timidly in. It was a girl not more than seven years old—quite too young, Mrs. Stirling thought, to be trusted alone in the streets; but then she herself had been brought up under the successive rule of nursery maid and governess.

She took the bundle from the child's hand, and said, with the same bright, kind smile which had wiled John Stirling's bachelor heart away:

"Where did you come from, and how did you find your way here alone, you poor little thing?"

"Sister Annie sent me, ma'am. She had done your embroidery, and she thought if she could get the money for it to pay Mr. Jenkins, maybe he would let us stay in the room till she got a little better."

"She is sick, then?"

"Yes'm. She didn't feel well enough to come. It has been hard getting along all summer, for the ladies she works for were almost all out of town, and some of them owing her; I s'pose the worry and not having much to eat did it, ma'am."

Mrs. Stirling leaned toward the little creature, and looked at her more closely. Could it be hunger, she thought, that made those blue eyes look so large and the skin transparent? Was this little thing actually suffering for bread, and she going to spend five hundred dollars in one evening, feasting those who had never felt a want even of dainties? She knew not what thoughts had been in her husband's mind when he spoke of the suffering among the poor. She said pleasantly:

"Well, child, you must have some luncheon, and then I will go with you to see your sister. I had better speak to her about the work."

"Isn't it right? Can't you pay her?" The child gave a start of alarm and spoke with the premature womanliness and natural apprehension of misfortune which are among the saddest fruits of poverty.

Mrs. Sterling relieved her with ready sympathy.

"Yes, indeed, the work is all right. It's done beautifully; but I want to see your sister about some more, and perhaps I can do her good."

It would have made the kind lady's heart ache could she have seen the eagerness with which the half famished child devoured the lunch which was set before her in the kitchen.

In a few moments they were ready to start. Mrs. Stirling had replaced her velvet mantle by a Scotch shawl, her French hat by a simple straw; and with a basket in her hand containing a few dainties with which she hoped to tempt the sick girl's palate, she followed the child across the city toward C—— street, a locality hitherto terra incognita to her.

In a half dilapidated wooden house, in a narrow court, she found the object of her search. She went up two flights of stairs and entered a back room lighted by one window. The atmosphere struck her, in spite of her warm attire, with a sudden chill.

Evidently the sun never came there.—The dampness on the wall, the general aspect of gloom and cheerfulness, was only relieved by the scrupulous neatness which pervaded everything. Mrs. Stirling had already noticed this quality in the attire of the child, which, though cheap, and poor, and patched, was as immaculate in its cleanness as her own.

At the window, attempting to sew, the older sister sat, but she was evidently very ill. Every now and then a spasm of coughing seized her, which compelled her to lay down her work and clasp both her hands to her side, while the paleness of her thin cheek flushed into hectic. Mrs. Stirling had not seen her before since spring, the work returned that morning having been sent to her by a servant. She went to her and sat down in a chair that stood near.

"Your sister said you were sick, and so I came to see if I could be of any use to you," she said, in gentle tones, which of themselves carried a certain comfort with them. "You have changed terribly since spring. I must hear all about it; but I want you should eat what I have brought you; here is some jelly, and a bit of cold chicken—they will do you good."

The poor girl looked at the viands with the involuntary greediness of hunger.—Then she blushed deeply, and said in a low voice:

"I am very grateful, madam; but if you please, I will wait until you leave me. Allow me at present to attend to you."

"No, indeed!" Mrs. Stirling spoke in her pretty absolute fashion. "I am not going yet. I want to talk with you awhile, and I shall not do so until you have taken something to strengthen you. Little Jane has lunched already."

So the gay, bright lady sat and waited, feeling, in the new prospect of being actively useful, a general glow of delight.—When the girl had finished her generous meal and taken up her work again, Mrs. Stirling began to talk to her.

"Is this consumption, Annie?" she asked, gently, "your cough alarms me."

"No, ma'am, I am sure it is nothing of the kind yet. There is no consumption in our family. My father was a country minister, and had a strong and healthy constitution. He died young, but it was from a violent fever, caught in attendance on a sick stranger. I think it was grief that made my mother follow him in three months. She had always been delicate, though not sickly, and she lacked the strength it required to live and suffer. It is seven years since she died, on the very day that little Jane was born."

"How old were you then?"

"Fifteen, and there were no living children between us two."

"And you have supported yourself ever since?"

"Oh! no. My father's books sold for enough to keep us some time, and my aunt, who lived here, brought us to Boston. We both lived with her. She took care of Jane and I worked in a shop, and earned enough to buy her clothes and help Aunt Martha with the living. It is only since she died, three years ago, that I have been at all alone with Jenny."

"You came out of the shop?"

"Yes, because I could not have Jenny there with me, and she had no one else to see to her, and indeed I have made more money since; I have embroidered so much."

"But surely you have suffered more than usual this summer?"

"Oh! yes, ma'am. The ladies that I work for are mostly out of town in the summer, and so winters I try to save something to help me through. But last winter was so hard that I had not as much work as usual and this summer we have not been very well off. I had to give up the comfortable room I used to have, because I could not earn enough to pay for it, and I suppose the dampness here has not just agreed with me."

By comparing with the terrestial source of heat, Lord Ross estimates the actual temperature of the moon's surface at lunar mid-day to be about five hundred degrees Fahrenheit. This scorching results from the slow rotation of the moon, which makes it equal to our month, and from the absence of any atmosphere to screen the lunar world. Years ago, Sir John Herschel, who has more than once proved himself a prophet by his sagacious inferences, remarked that "the surface of the full moon exposed to us must necessarily be very much heated, possibly to a degree much exceeding that of boiling water." Fontenelle and his followers to the contrary notwithstanding, the moon can be no place for living beings, unless they are salamanders.

A SOUTHERNMAN and an Irishman happened to be journeying together through a most interminable forest, and by some mishap lost their way and wandered about in a most pitiable condition for awhile, when they fortunately came across a miserable hovel, which was deserted save by a lone chicken. As this was the only thing eatable to be obtained, they eagerly dispatched and prepared it for supper. When laid before them Pat concluded that it was insufficient for the support of both himself and Sawney, and therefore a proposition was made to his companion that they should spare the chicken until the next morning, and the one, who had the most pleasant dream should have the chicken, which was ag

GOV. GEARY has vetoed the Metropolitan Police Bill. It had passed the Legislature by a strict party vote, except that in the Senate Mr. Lowry voted with the Democrats against the bill. The veto has occasioned a good deal of criticism, the Republicans generally condemning and the Democrats lauding it. In Philadelphia, to which city the bill was applicable, the Republican organs differ widely, some approving, others condemning. The main objection to the bill seems to have been the character of the men named for the Police Commission. It certainly would have been better had the Legislature simply created a Police Commission, leaving the members of it to be selected by some proper agency, either by popular vote or appointment by the Governor or the Courts. Still we think the Governor, in his veto, goes too far, and in attacking the general principle of the bill assumes untenable ground. Experience has proved that to secure an efficient Police system in large cities where vice preponderates and its votaries constitute a power in elections, it is necessary that the appointment and control of policemen be not dependent on the will of the mob. Baltimore City, although Democratic in all its ramifications, has a Police Commission elected by the Legislature for a term of years. New York has her Police Commission, and the struggle there to-day is not to remand the police system to the control of the Mayor, but to legislate out of office the present Board and substitute another more agreeable to the "ring" which rules that city. What is found necessary in Baltimore, New York, and other cities, cannot be essentially wrong when applied to Philadelphia. Gov. Geary would have done wisely in simply objecting to the defects of the bill, instead of assailing its essential principle. Philadelphia, under the rule of Mayor Fox, is the worst governed city we know of. Any change could not well make things worse. As it is, every Democratic rowdy, ballot-box stuffer and shoulder-hitter in Philadelphia, will glorify over this veto, while Bedford street will have its saturnalia.

ALL efforts to save the life of Dr. Paul Schœppe, convicted of the murder of Miss Steinecke, have proved abortive. Schœppe's counsel, under an arrangement with the Attorney General, got the case into the Supreme Court. In the mean time the Legislature passed a bill authorizing the Supreme Court to review not only the law but the facts in murder cases.—Although general in its provisions, the bill was understood to have special reference to the Schœppe case. Gov. Geary vetoed the bill, and we think rightly, as a dangerous innovation upon our criminal system. This left the case to be decided by the Supreme Court on its legal aspects alone, and on Monday the Court affirmed the judgment of the Court below, holding that there was no error in the record of the inferior Court, and that they could not consider the question of the prisoner's guilt or innocence. That was the province of the Jury. The case is now in Gov. Geary's hands, who will issue the death-warrant, as his convictions of the prisoner's guilt are understood to be decided.

The recent revelations as to Schœppe's career in Germany, where he was convicted of larceny and forgery, while having no direct bearing on the Carlisle murder, have served to abate the unusual sympathy that was felt for him.

THE annual report of the State Superintendent of Schools for Soldiers Orphans shows that there are now in existence in the State thirteen schools of a more advanced class, and six of a primary kind. The former are maintaining and educating 2,093 pupils, and the latter 800, making a total of 2,893 orphaned children supported by these charities. Besides these schools, there are in the State twenty-three homes, asylums, and places of refuge, which are devoted to the care of soldiers' orphans, and which receive more or less aid from the State. These are reckoned by the Superintendent as belonging to the system of charities which comes under his control. They care for some 3,600 children. As it was to be expected, the statistics show an annual decrease in the applications for admission and an increase of the discharges. This will continue in like proportions the further we recede from the War, until all the soldiers' orphans shall have reached an age to care for themselves. The cost of the system to the State last year was $500,971.62.

THE Superior Court of Ohio has rendered an important decision on the Bible question. It will be recollected that the Cincinnati School Board, some months ago, ordered the exclusion of the Bible from the Common Schools of that city. A preliminary injunction was sued out from the Superior Court restraining the Board from enforcing the order. The case was subsequently elaborately argued by learned counsel, and we now have the decision of the Court adverse to the School Board and making the injunction perpetual.—Judge Hogens held that a provision of the Constitution recognised religion and Christianity, and acknowledged that religion and morality were necessary to good government; that the State used religion as a means to promote good government, and, therefore, the exclusion of all religious instruction from the public schools was contrary to the provisions of the Bill of Rights. Judge Stover concurred, and the injunction was made perpetual.—Judge Taft dissented.

TEXAS has ratified the Fifteenth Amendment, thus giving the required number independent of New York.—Nebraska will follow, as the Governor ordered a special session of the Legislature this week, to take action in the premises. As soon as official information of the ratification by Texas and Nebraska reaches Washington, the President will issue a Proclamation announcing Manhood Suffrage as the supreme law of the land. The first application of the Amendment will be in New Hampshire and Connecticut, where State elections will take place in a few weeks.

THE Fulton Democrat, published by S. M. Robinson, has re-appeared, enlarged and improved. Our young friend was burned out in December last, and we are glad to see the pluck he shows in starting afresh. Barring its politics, the Democrat is a readable paper.

BEN. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, is a dangerous opponent in debate—ready, keen, and caustic in retort, and at times cruelly savage. To attack him is as risky as to play with edge tools.—"Sunset" Cox, of New York, tried the experiment on Thursday last and paid the penalty of his daring. Butler has been waspish for some time, by reason of attacks on his past record, and the other day gave notice in the House that there were three charges which had been repeated in debate so often that, for the sake of economy, he thought the public printer might as well keep them in type. They were, first, that he voted for Jeff. Davis; second, that his conversion to Republicanism was a sudden one, and third, that he was not in the Republican party so long as some other people. That was all true. But in the olden time he had no doubt there were many who would stand by Judas, only because he was the oldest apostate.

On Thursday, pending the debate on the Appropriation Bill, Cox got the floor and commenced a satirical attack on Butler, in the guise of an assumed defence, which, however, revamped the "gold spoons" story, Fort Fisher, &c., by way of insinuation. Butler walked over to near where Mr. Cox was speaking, and stood looking up into his face all the time, while the House and galleries listened with wrapt attention. The correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer thus describes the scene:

Mr. Cox dealt only in insinuations, and was vaguely personal. When he had concluded General Butler, who had not moved a muscle while Mr. Cox was speaking, turned and walked quietly towards his seat, with a look over towards the Republicans that seemed to say, "Wonder if Cox don't think he's smart?" All eyes were kept on General Butler, who watched his chance, and on getting the floor commenced to speak to the amendment, when the whole Democratic side of the House broke camp and moved towards where General Butler was speaking.

The Chairman rapped for order, and partially cleared the aisles. General Butler proceeded deliberately to speak to the point, and all concluded that he did not mean to notice Mr. Cox's assault. He turned coolly to the Democratic side, and charged that Mr. Cox had endeavored to insinuate things he was too cowardly to charge openly, and he could take no notice of such matters, but would only reply to the language of the boys in the street, where such talk was only appropriate, "Shoo-fly, don't bodder me." As he waived his hand with a sweeping brush towards Mr. Cox, the House and galleries were convulsed with laughter, which extended to the Democratic side, and broke out over and over again, lasting two or three minutes.

"Sunset" grew red in the face, and tried to gather up all its resources, which were entirely inadequate for the emergency. Subsequently he renewed the attack on General Butler, but was in such a passion that he made no sharp points, and had better have said nothing. To-night "Shoo Fly Cox" is everywhere heard, and Mr. Cox will get rid of the "Sunset" in this new appellation.

THE "pomp and circumstance" attending the burial of the late George Peabody, were extraordinary and far beyond what have ever been accorded to any private, untitled man. The English and American Governments vied with each other in paying honors to the dead, each detailing a War vessel to transport his remains across the ocean, and each appointing distinished national representatives to take part in the funeral ceremonies, Queen Victoria deeming it fitting that she should be specially represented. And yet there was nothing in the character of Mr. Peabody to raise him to the level even of thousands of others men of his day, distinguished for their labors in humanizing agencies. Without decided religious character—confessedly conservative in all his convictions—hard and harsh in dealing with the world—turning a deaf ear to and rudely repulsing appeals for charity—an American by birth, yet, during the dark days of the rebellion, giving no evidence of sympathy with the cause for which the noblest of our citizens were sacrificing fortune and life—but for the fact that in his later years Mr. Peabody was fortunate in business, amassed a large fortune, and became his own executor by appropriating his means to educational and charitable purposes, it is very clear that we would have none of this "pomp and circumstance" at his funeral. These are to be accepted, then, not as tributes to the man but to his gifts—princely gifts, it is true—and a laudation, not of character, but of ostentatious charities. Many nobler men and women have done nobler things, albeit the world has made little note of them, because done with less ostentation and limited means. Once, while many rich were casting money into the treasury, a poor widow threw in two mites, of which Infinite Wisdom affirmed: "Verly I say unto you that this poor widow hath cast more in than all they which have cast into the treasury. For all they did cast in of their abundance; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even all her living."

IT begins to look as if the charges against Senator Lowery of having sold himself to the Democracy were true. He has acquired a bad habit of voting with the opposition, and against the Republican Senators. In the Scull Findlay case, he has the controlling vote as between the two Republican and two Democratic members of the Committee, and manages invariably to side with the latter in the face of law and justice. He is either stupidly ignorant of the plainest principles of law, or shamelessly reckless of his Senatorial oath.

IT will be recollected that the Court of Common Pleas of Philadelphia, some months ago, after a protracted investigation, ousted all the Democratic City officers, except the Mayor, elected in the fall of 1868, by reason of gross frauds practiced at the election. The Democracy raised considerable of a howl over this decision, and the cases were taken to the Supreme Court for review. The latter tribunal has affirmed the decision of the Court below, giving the offices to the Republican contestants for the City Row officers.

THE political disorders and threatened revolutions in Mexico have brought the dictator, Santa Anna, into notice again. He is en route for Mexico, in hope of getting once more into power. He arrived at Havana on Monday, but the Captain General of Cuba does not seem to have much faith in Santa Anna's ability to do good, and accordingly ordered him to leave the city on the first steamer for any other than a Mexican port.

A NEW collegiate institution is to be started in Montgomery county, under the patronage of the Philadelphia Classis of the Reformed Church. Dr. J. H. Bomberger has been elected President, with the usual corps of Professors. It will represent the antiliturgical wing of that Church.

BORDER DAMAGES.

On Monday last Dr. Dill introduced a bill in the House, authorizing the payment of damages sustained by citizens of Pennsylvania during the war of the rebellion and to provide means therefor. He moved that it be printed and made the special order for Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The vote stood—yeas 47, nays 42. As a two-third vote was requisite the motion failed; but the fact of the motion receiving a majority vote, augurs well for the ultimate passage of the bill. It authorizes a loan of $750,000 on 6 per cent. bonds, one half redeemable in five years and the balance in seven. It further authorizes the State Treasurer to pay $500,000 on the claims on the 15th of March, 1870, and $300,000 in June and December of each year there after, until the claims are paid. The claims are to be examined and approved by Levi Maish and Arthur M. Green, for York; David Wills and William McClean, for Adams; William F. Sadler and John R. Miller, for Cumberland and Perry; Geor, e R. Smith and J. H. Longnecker, for Bedford and Fulton; Theo. McGowan and J. W. Douglass, for Franklin.

THE State Temperance Convention, which met in Harrisburg last week, was presided over by John Beardsly, of Philadelphia. Among the Vice Presidents we notice Gen. Coffroth, of Somerset, formerly Democratic member of Congress from this district. A. W. Flemming, of Gettysburg, was on the Committee on organization. The Business Committee made a majority and minority report—the former declaring in favor of "the adoption of the expedient of local action, wherever practicable, and that in the acceptance of any act or acts of the Legislature, for the suppression of the general sale of intoxicating liquors, and in the selection of officers to enforce such laws when accepted, they should labor to accomplish this purpose by co-operating with existing political parties, or by establishing independent organizations, as may be most expedient in their several districts,"—the latter declaring for the organization of a third party pledged to political action on temperance issues. The discussion of these reports occupied nearly the whole time of the Convention. The motion to adopt the minority report was finally defeated, yeas 55, nays 121. The majority report was then adopted.—The Convention further approved the bill now before the Legislature to authorize the voters of townships and boroughs to determine by ballot whether licenses shall or shall not be granted in their districts—in case a majority vote against license, the Courts to be bound by such decision and no license to be granted for such district.

ON Monday the Judiciary Committee of the United States Senate reported favorably on the nominations of Judges Strong and Bradley to be Associate Justices of the Supreme Court. Strong will be confirmed, but there is some doubt as to Bradley.

ON Tuesday the State Senate passed over the Governor's veto the bill to allow the Supreme Court to review both facts and law in murder cases—ayes 22, nays 5. In the House it was carried, yeas 62, nays 28.

SHOO FLY!

COX DEMORALIZED—THE LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

"Pickles" gives us the last about Cox, as follows:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11.—Butler's "Shoo Fly" jig with Cox was all the talk at the hotels last evening. I met Dawes and Pomeroy at the Arlington, and the former said he thought the retort was better than Webster's "git out." Pomeroy was unusually moderate, and don't think it exactly fair to pursue the little man in his humiliation. It seems that when Morrissey carried him out in the fresh air he revived without the use of the usual restoratives, though Brooks stood by, bottle in hand, and had already drawn the cork, as he evidently considered the case a critical one. Cox's first words on recovering were addressed to Morrissey, "Jack, old boy, does lightning scorch?" "Well, Sam, I've known it to burn," responded the anxious Morrissey, taking the bottle from Brooks, and pressing the mouth of it to the lips of the wanderer after "Winter Sunbeams." "I feel better now, Jack. Guess you'd better call a hack." The hack was procured, and the whole party drove straight to the National. That evening an entertainment was given at Mrs. C's, in I street, to which Cox had been invited. He did not appear, and the fact elicited considerable comment. Several excuses were volunteered, but an Ohioan who had known Cox when he was a member from the Buckeye State "poohpoohed" them all. "Bah!" said he, "because Grant once shut Butler up in a glass house, every little Congressional gamin thought he could throw stones at him, and poor Cox only forgot that Ben had moved out long ago."

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE ON THE NORTH RIVER.—The New York Times of Friday says:

The ferry boat which left the slip at Hoboken for Barclay street, in this city, at 9:15 last evening, was the scene of a melancholy suicide. When the boat had reached the middle of the river, a woman of more than ordinary beauty, elegantly attired, leaped from the bow of the boat into the river. She was caught in the wheel, and must have been horribly mangled. Her body descended forever beneath the waves in the presence of a number of horror-stricken passengers, who had been apprised of the occurrence before it could be prevented. She had been observed by the pilots of the boat upon its bow, but did not divine her intentions until after she had taken the fatal leap. As soon as she had done so, the boat was stopped and preparations made to rescue her, but before these could be made effective her fate had been decided. She sat in the ladies' cabin for some while before going to the place from which she leaped, and during that time her conduct was so eccentric and betrayed so much agitation as to elict remark. She divided her attention between a ring which she had upon the fourth finger of her left hand and a letter which she had drawn from her pocket. Her going out of the cabin before the boat reached the pier was remarked as singular, but unfortunately none of her fellow passengers followed her.

A WOMAN SHOOTS HER FAITHLESS LOVER IN CHURCH.—While the congregation at St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in Piqua, Ohio, were engaged in worship Sunday morning a young woman named Miss Mary Maher entered the church. After being seated a few moments she deliberately took a pistol from her pocket and shot a young man named Thomas Wise, who occupied a seat immediately in front of her. Wise, after being shot, arose and started toward the entry. The woman pursued him, endeavoring to shoot him a second time, but was prevented by a policeman, who arrested her. It appears that Wise had promised to marry her, but had since engaged himself to another, which engagement was announced in church the same morning. Wise's condition is rather critical.

A GUNPOWDER BOOMERANG.—The latest curiosity in gunnery has just been tested at Fortress Monroe, with "success," as reported. It is a cannon shot that holds another shot within it, and while flying through the air and near the end of its range, discharges this second shot, and this gives great range. It is to be hoped the first shot may be always so continued as not to turn any somersaults and so send the second shot the wrong way.

A MOST brutal murder was committed in Norfolk county, Va., last week. It appears that several members of a family named Seguine, cut out the tongue and cut the throat from ear to ear of a colored boy in their employ, and then hid his body in the woods. The boy's absence was soon noticed by the neighbors, and a search revealed his body. The murderers received wind of the movements of the sheriff, who had been sent to apprehend them, and on his arrival he found they had fled.

JUST before leaving Boston, Prince Arthur sent to Miss Minnie Sherman, daughter of General Sherman, a chaste and costly gold medallion, having his likeness on one side and that of Queen Victoria on the other. Accompanying the gift was a delicately worded note, in which the Prince begged that Miss Sherman would accept of the medallion as a token of his appreciation of the generous hospitalities he had experienced at the house of her father, and as a slight tribute to the beauty of American women, of which she was so striking an exponent.

FOREIGN LUXURIES.—From a Ministerial report upon the foreign trade of France, we learn that in 1868 the export of artificial flowers to the United States was to the value of 1,242,150 francs, which advanced to 3,850,963 francs in the first ten months of 1869—which would make a total of 4,621,145 francs for the year. Fancy a sum of over $920,000 expended, lavished, almost thrown away, in a twelvemonth, on such a frivolous superfluity as artificial flowers. If such were necessary, the article can be, and is, made as well in Philadelphia and New York as in Paris, and at a fourth of the price. But then it would be American, not French; and domestic products do not satisfy the difficult tastes and pampered fancies of what is called Fashion.

RAVAGES OF SMALL-POX AMONG THE INDIANS.—Gen. Sully has written to Commissioner Parker in reference to the ravages of the small-pox among the Gross Ventres Indians at Fort Browning reservation, Montana Territory. Since last September, when the disease broke out, 741 deaths have occurred, leaving only about 1,200 of this nation alive. Everything that could be done to alleviate their suffering was done. Upon telegraphic instructions from Commissioner Parker medical supplies were sent to them, and an experienced physician employed, through whose exertions a stop was put to the ravages of the disease. Gen. Sully says what makes the calamity still more to be deplored is that of all the Indians in Montana, these are the most friendly to the whites, and among the Indians most disposed to accept civilization. At one time the deaths at the Agency were so rapid that the few men there could not dig graves fast enough, and they had to fill up the ice house near the fort with the dead, and then cover them up.

NEWS OF NEIGHBORING COUNTIES.

CARROLL.—The barn of Samuel Keller, near Loister's Church, with all its contents, was totally destroyed by fire, about 9 o'clock on last Saturday night. Two horses, one colt, three cows, one hundred bushels of wheat, several tons of hay and other articles were destroyed. There was no insurance.

FRANKLIN.—Henry Gray, colored, employee of the Repository office, has been arrested for robbery of the Chambersburg Post-office on Saturday night; he got $20 in money, but no letters or stamps.—J. W. Deal, late Postmaster at Chambersburg, has been appointed General Baggage Agent on the Kansas and Pacific Railroad.—The County Commissioners have appointed Henry Koontz clerk and John Shiffefield Janitor.—The Directors of the Poor have appointed Samuel Brandt, Steward; Dr. Wm. H. Boyle, Physician, and John R. Orr, Attorney and Clerk.—The new Lutheran church in Waynesboro will be dedicated on Sunday next.—On Friday last, a son of Mathew Metcalf, residing 4½ miles from Waynesboro, aged 5 years, while playing with a clay pipe broke a piece from the stem 1½ inches long, and accidently got it into his wind-pipe. All efforts to remove it failing, a surgical operation was performed on Sunday by Dr. Snively, by making an opening above the breast-bone. He failed, however, to reach the pipe stem, and in six hours thereafter the child died. A post mortem examination next day showed the pipe stem firmly lodged in the right bronchial tube.—The name of Greenwood Mills Postoffice has been changed to Black's Gap.

YORK.—A young man named Glatfelter was killed by the caving in of an ore bank, at Seven Valley, on Friday last.—During the recent snow-storm, on the 8th, the framework of the Baptist Church, at New Freedom, was blown down. The building had just been erected on the Thursday previous. —On the 30th ult., a child of John Baublitz, near Wolf's church, was so badly scalded on the head and breast by a cup of hot coffee that it died on the following Tuesday.—Francis Zinn, Heidelberg township, while cutting wood on the 2d cut his foot very badly.—John Werner, of same township, had one of his legs broken last week, while working in an ore bank, by a large piece of ore falling on him.

FROM EUROPE.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The weather to-day is intensely cold throughout Europe. At Paris the thermometer indicates 80 degrees below freezing point. The Elbe is entirely closed to navigation on account of the ice, and the practice of the Oxford and Cambridge boat crews on the Thames is suspended from the same cause.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Thirty-five persons were arrested yesterday on suspicion of complicity in a plot against the State and the life of the Emperor. In all cases arms were found upon the persons of the prisoners. Those arrested were incarcerated in the Prison Mazas, or the Boulevard Mazas, and will soon be proceeded against. More arrests are to be made.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—The city is tranquil. Seven editors of the Reforma newspaper have received an order to appear before the Court to answer charges preferred against them for a violation of the Press law in answer to the summons, the Reform this morning publishes an article against the Government of extraordinary violence.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—The Emperor and the Prince Imperial visited the Bois de Boulogne to-day. The Prince, who has fully recovered from his recent illness, skated on the Lake. The Empress Eugenie is quite ill and could not accompany the party.

The speech of the King of Prussia at the opening of the Federal Parliament is not well received here. Nearly all the journals consider in menacing in tone.

MADRID, Feb. 15.—The Duke de Montpensier has arrived here, and is already in intimate communication with General Prim. He has had long interviews with General Prim and Admiral Topete. These circumstances cause much comment.

VIENNA, Feb. 15.—The Free Press confirms the report that the protest of Austria and other Catholic Powers against the Papal Syllabus has been transmitted to Rome.

The Star and Sentinel.

Gettysburg, Friday, Feb. 18, 1870.

APPOINTED.—The Town Council has appointed ROBERT MARTIN, Esq., Clerk vice F. D. DUPHORN resigned.

ASSESSMENT.—The "Mummasburg Mutural Fire Protection Society" has made an assessment of one per cent. on the premium notes.

☞ Wm. Weigle has sold his property, in Tyrone township, to a gentleman of York county—45 acres, with improvements, at $2,300.

APPOINTMENT.—Charles J. Barnitz, Esq., of York, has been appointed Bank Assessor for York and Adams Counties. This appointment was made by the Auditor General and State Treasurer.

☞ SAMUEL HERBST wishes to buy ten or fifteen sound Horses. No one need bring a Horse unless he intends to sell cheap for cash. Bring your Horses to Wm. E. Myers' stable, next Monday or Tuesday.

SALE NOTES.—We have printed a new series of neat Sale Notes, with and without waivers of Exemption—also Judgment notes, with and without wavers.—Furnished in any quantity, and if desired can be bound.

☞ The Western Maryland Railroad bill, appropriating $1,400,000 for its completion, has passed both branches of the Maryland Legislature unanimously, and now only awaits ratification by a vote of the people at Baltimore, to be taken in a little over three weeks from now.

ACCIDENT.—A few days ago Mr. J. H. Baumgardner, of Littlestown, met with a painful accident. Whilst engaged in hewing a rough piece of timber, the broad-axe accidently slipped, and entered his right foot, severing one of his toes entirely from his foot, and severely cutting several others.—Press.

DROWNED.—On the 7th inst., a son of WM. HELTZEL, one of the editors of the Hanover Citizen, aged four years, was drowned near New Oxford, while on a visit to his grandfather, Nicholas Heltzel, Esq.—He had strayed to an old stone quarry near by Mr. Heltzel's residence, adjoining the Railroad, and by some means fell in. The child being missed some time, alarm was felt at his prolonged absence, and upon search being made, his lifeless body was discovered in the quarry.

RELIGIOUS MEETINGS.—The Rev. Mr. Dixon has been holding a protracted meeting in the M. E. Church, in New Oxford, for several weeks past. It is said that a good feeling prevails, with numerous seekers after religion.

There are also meetings held nightly in Myer's school house, below New Oxford.

Meetings are also being held at the Pines church near New Chester, and at several other places through the county. The meetings are well attended.

HEAVY HOG.—On Monday last, ABRAHAM N. HESS, residing near Taneytown, Md., killed a hog, about 25 months old, which weighed, when dressed, 721½ lbs.—Being an unusually large porker, there was a good deal of guessing as to the probable weight, among the neighbors.—Six-two persons put their guesses and names on paper, each contributing 25 cents for the privilege, the person coming nearest to take the money. Mr. ABSALOM SMITH, of Frederick county, proved the best guesser, coming within one pound of the correct weight.

☞ Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co., of Boston, send us a package of beautiful juvenile volumes, entitled (Teachers' Gift Books) of 18 mo. size, neatly done up in paper covers, and containing about 60 pages each. The stories are sensible, high-toned, full of life and zest and teach noble lessons, such as the little people will be likely to learn, remember and profit by. They are fitting presents from a teacher or a parent, and the books are cheap as well as good. They can be obtained of the publishers, by mail, postpaid, 40 cents per package.

MURDOCH COMING.—We announced several weeks ago that JAMES E. Murdoch, the eminent tragedian, had been engaged by the Phrenakosmian Society of Pennsylvania College, to give a Reading in Agricultural Hall. We are informed by the committee that Mr. Murdoch will be here on Monday evening the 28th inst. The same society has engaged Bishop SIMPSON, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to deliver a Lecture, which will be announced in due season. The Society is wise in securing first class Lecturers, and we predict a full house on both occasions.

LECTURE.—The lecture by Rev. E. B. RAFFENSPERGER, on Tuesday evening, on "The Humors of the Pulpit and the Pew," was quite an enjoyable entertainment. Mr. R. is a pleasant talker. Ministerial experience has developed a rich fund of anecdote, illustrative of varied phases of human character, and the lecturer has judiciously culled therefrom a number of humorous anecdotes, which are well told. While dealing largely with anecdote, Mr. R. does not lose sight of the dignity of the Ministerial office, and the lecture was characterized by common sense, evangelical sentiment, and quaint humor. The evening being very unpleasant, the audience was not large.

HUNG HIMSEF.—A Mr. John Brooks, storekeeper in Rayville on the Parkton and Manchester Railroad, a few miles from Parkton, was found suspended by a bed chord in his stable, on Wednesday morning of last week, by the servant girl who went out to milk. He was not yet dead, when discovered, and cut down by his wife. A physician was immediately sent for, a few miles off, who used every means to bring him to life, but failed. It was indebtedness, it is thought, that caused him to commit the rash act. On Monday last, his store goods and chattles were advertised to be sold. A few days before he committed suicide, he was in his usual good health and spirits, but complained of having been badly treated.

PARKTON AND MANCHESTER RAILROAD.—We learn that about one mile of this road has already been graded, at the lower end, near Parkton, and that ground was broken at the upper end, near Manchester, on Monday last, by Messrs. McGuicken and Shower, the contractors. The road approaches the town on the East side, and when at the College it curves to the left, crossing the Pike near the centre of the town, at its lowest point, at Crumrine's store and the lower Hotel, making the Depot on the Westminster road, near the centre of the town. There was considerable contention as to where the Depot was to be located, but finally the west side prevailed, Dr. Shower giving two acres of ground to the company for Depot purposes.

REMARKABLE WEATHER.—It is said by many old persons of this and other sections, that such weather has never been known, the winter being unusually mild and open. Almost every week, thus far, plowing has been done—one day sunshine, the next cloudy—then rain or snow, and very little frost in the ground. We have just been informed by a gentleman from Manchester, Md., that about one mile below Hampstead, Carroll county, a farmer prepared new grain last fall for seeding, but did get it ready at the usual time; so last week he got the ground in fine condition for the reception of the seed, and so put the seed in the ground, sowing the field in it. This is something new, to sow in January; but nevertheless it is true. Should the weather continue pleasant, as it has been, it may bring forth a good crop of grain.

THE FAIRFIELD TURNPIKE.—We understand the Committee appointed to canvass for subscriptions to the Fairfield & Gettysburg Turnpike Company, have met with fair success. A number of farmers have shown their appreciation of the importance of the movement by making liberal subscriptions, but there are a large number who have thus far subscribed little or nothing. If this important enterprise is to go through, the efforts of the committee should be seconded by prompt and liberal subscriptions. For general information we give in full the Act of Incorporation.

AN ACT TO INCORPORATE THE FAIRFIELD AND GETTYSBURG TURNPIKE ROAD COMPANY.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That Peter Shively, R. C. Swope, Jacob Musselman, John Mickley, John Wangh, Sanford Shroeder, John Musselman, Charles H. Buhrman, Henry Landis, James H. Marshall, James Donaldson, Samuel Martin Adam C. Musselman, William Culp, David Miller, Daniel Mickley, Henry Yingling, James Marshall, David Musselman, J. Stewart Witherow, Joseph Culbertson, Ebenezer M'Ginley, David Stewart, Joseph Gelbach, John J. Kerr, John A. M'Ginly, Andrew Weikert, Henry Bream, Isaac Herreter, John Currens, Emanuel Harman, John L. Tate, Joseph Welble, James Bigham, Robert M'Curdy, Alexander Spangler, John Cross, William Myers, Henry Rupp, George W. M'Clellan, and Samuel Herbst, or any any five of them, be and they are hereby appointed commissioners to open books, receive subscriptions, and organize a company by the name and style of "The Fairfield and Gettysburg Turnpike Road Company," with power to construct a turnpike road of not less than thirty nor more than fifty feet in width, and stoned or gravelled not less than twenty-one feet in width, from the borough of Gettysburg, in Adams county, to Fairfield, and from thence to such point as said company may deem best upon the turnpike road leading from Waynesboro', in Franklin county, to the Maryland State line, subject to all the provisions and restrictions of an act entitled "An Act regulating turnpike and plank road companies," approved the 26th of February A. D. 1849, and the several supplements thereto, except in so far as they are by this act altered or supplied.

SECTION 2. That the capital stock of said company shall consist of twelve hundred shares of $25 per share: Provided, That the said company may from time to time, by a vote of the majority of the stock-holders present at a meeting called for that purpose, increase their capital stock so much as in their opinion may be necessary to complete or extend said road and carry out the true intent and meaning of this act.

SECTION 3. That it shall be lawful for said company to make use of, for the purpose of their said road, any county or township bridge on the line of the route of their road and any portion of any public road.

SECTION 4. That the president and managers of said company shall have power to establish and regulate the rate of toll, not exceeding two cents per mile, or at the same rate for a less distance, for each horse, mule, oxen or other animal travelling over the same, whether attached to any vehicle or vehicles or otherwise: Provided, That all funeral possessions, and persons passing to and from places of public worship, and persons passing from one part of his, her or their farm to any other portion of the same, shall be exempt from payment of toll; and the said company shall have power to erect toll gates wherever they shall have completed their said road between Gettysburg and Fairfield, and said company shall not be liable for a fractional part of a cent in making change.

SECTION 5. That the said company shall have power to borrow money at any rate of interest not exceeding seven per centum for the purpose of completing their road, and to issue bonds therefor with or without coupons, and secure the same by mortgage of their road and franchises.

SECTION 6. That if said company shall not commence the construction of their road within two years, and complete the same within five years from the passage of this act, it shall become null and void except in so far as the same may be necessary to settle up the affairs of said company: Provided, That if the said company shall have completed their said road between Fairfield and Gettysburg within said five years, this act shall not become null and void.

SECTION 7. That said company may connect their road with the turnpike from Gettysburg to Chambersburg either at the borough of Gettysburg or at any point on said other road north-west of said borough.

JOHN CLARK,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
WILMER WORTHINGTON,
Speaker of the Senate.

APPROVED—The seventeenth day of April, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine.

JNO. W. GEARY.

UNION MEETING.—On Wednesday evening a union meeting of the various congregations in this place was held in the Presbyterian church, to consider the propriety of organizing a Young Men's Christian Association. Rev. Mr. Hillis was called to the chair. Remarks in explanation and furtherance of the object of the meeting were made by Rev. Dr. Brown, Dr. Hay, Prof. Baugher, Prof. Conrad, Prof. Ferrier, Rev. Jamison, Rev. Cheston, Rev. Breidenbaugh, Rev. Hillis, Mr. Smiltz and others.

An association being already in existence connected with the College, Messrs. J. M. Krauth, Harry Schick, Granville Swope, Levi Stallsmith, E. Breidenbaugh, and T. J. Stable were appointed a Committee to confer with a Committee of the College association, and make report to an adjourned meeting, to be held in the Good Templar's Hall, on Baltimore street, on Saturday evening next. The young men in town are cordially invited to attend the meeting.

ESCAPE AND ARREST.—On Wednesday evening last, Wm. Swingler, committed on the charge of stealing clothing from the Store of Mr. Francis Cunningham, and while in the escape from jail, between 8 and 9 o'clock. He seems to be a lithe, active chap, and being in the jail yard, managed to get on the roof of the bake-oven; thence to the roof of the jail cells, and thence to the roof of the Sheriff's residence. From the latter he jumped, 7 or 8 feet, to the jail wall, and from the latter into Mrs. Miller's garden on the east of the jail. It so happened that Mrs. Miller saw the prisoner's leap into her garden, and she at once gave the alarm to the Sheriff's family, Mr. Klunk himself being from home. The deputy, Mr. Klunk's son, and others at once made chase, the prisoner making for Culp's hill; but he was overtaken in Culp's field, a short distance from the jail.

ANNIVERSARY.—The Phrenakosmian Society, of Pennsylvania College will hold its Anniversary exercises in Agricultural Hall, on Tuesday evening next, the 22d inst. The public is invited to attend.—Doors open at 6½; exercises to commence at 7 o'clock.

ATTENTION FARMERS.—Try the celebrated Patent Elastic Rubber lined Collars, Saddles and Pads. Warranted to prevent horses from galling and to heal up under work horses already galled, if properly fitted; and sore backs and backs are kept clean, with cold water and Castile soap, or soap. For sale by A. W. Crouse, manufacturer's Agent, Gettysburg, Pa.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HEALTH RESTOR

The Star and Sentinel.

Gettysburg, Friday, Feb. 18, 1870.

[For the Star and Sentinel.

POOR BARNEY'S GONE!

Poor Barney's gone—my noble horse!
I ne'er shall drive him more!
All did their best his failing health
And functions to restore.

We dosed, and drenched, and blistered him,
Tried all our skill in vain,
Hill malady to overcome,
And drive away his pain!

We watched him long with anxious care,
By night and day we stood,
With willing hands to render him
The best relief we could.

We telegraphed the Farrier,
Amid the city's throng,
With all dispatch to come,
And bring his instruments along.

We then consulted sundry books,
In hopes to find in these
Some good specific safe and sure,
To give poor Barney ease.

In vain, alas! we tried our skill,
His sufferings to subdue;
No chance for good could we perceive,
He still no better grew.

So desperate became his case,
And caused me such delay,
That I at last abandoned hope,
And gave the horse away!

GRAPE VINES.

No one, in town or country, having a square yard of ground should be without a vine, and there are few varieties of fruit that could be made more profitable than the grape. Our object now, however, is not so much to recommend its cultivation as a business, but for the sake of the family. Everybody loves grapes, and in season there is no fruit more healthy, and none more easily raised, on a small scale at least; and if we can only induce some of our readers who have never turned their attention to the subject to plant out a few roots or cuttings this spring, we are confident that in a couple of years or so, when pulling from the vines the luscious bunches for their family table, they will inwardly bless us for having made the suggestion to them. A root—or if that is not so handy to be had—a cutting, which can be readily obtained from any one who has a vine upon his premises, can be stuck down in your yard, alongside of a fence, or what is better, against a wall, and as it progresses to be trained and tacked until reaching a height to require more support, when it can be trained along the fence or upright stakes supplied it to enable it to bear its increasing weight. You can, according to the room you have in the yard or garden, multiply the roots or cuttings. Of course you save at least a year in time by putting out the roots, and if to be obtained in no other way, you had better purchase some of the regular gardeners. Choose a warm exposure for the vines, and about ten to twelve feet apart, so as to allow plenty of room to spread, and not to be overshadowed by each other; if you plant out any number, on the side of a hill is preferable. Let the ground be well broken up where you plant them, and put with the soil a supply of rich mould or barnyard manure, or refuse from the tanners or shoemakers' premises; and, if you will go to the trouble of gathering up the bones about your yard and breaking them in small pices and place them around the roots, it will be an excellent manure and a protection too from mice. The ground about the rows of vines can be cultivated with any vegetable or plant desired which grows low, and the stirring of the ground, if the roots are not touched, will be beneficial. We would advise as about the best, for those who are going in on a small scale, at first to obtain the roots or plants of the Concord, the Delaware, the Catawba, the Diana, or the Isabella, as the varieties best suited for their purpose, as most reliable and easily obtained, and as well suited to our latitude.

THE WORLD,

DODGES' OHIO AND BUCKEYE

Reapers and Mowers.

A careful examination of these machines will commence any one of their superior merits over all others, in strength, durability, ease of draft, and reliability for work, on all kinds of ground, and in every variety of grass and grain. Confident of this we invite those in want of a good machine to examine for themselves before purchasing elsewhere.

These machines can be sold as Naked Mowers—REAPERS or Hind Rake, Self-Rake, or Dropper—Two different sizes: No. 1 Machine, with two cutter bars and three Knives, cutting 5 feet and a half of grain and four feet eight inches in grass; No. 2, cutting four feet six inches.

We have that confidence in these machines that we are willing to let those wanting a machine test them with any other they may wish, and keep the one that gives most satisfaction. DODGES' AUTOMAN SELF-RAKE has given such general satisfaction that we consider it the best Self-Rake out, and is attached to no other machine except the Dodge Machine, the Ohio and Buckeye patent.

For the benefit of those wanting machines we would refer them to a few of those to whom we have sold the last season, viz:

John Deardorff, Sen., Henry Culp,
Ephraim Lady, Henry King,
George Lady, Elisha Penrose,
Jonathan Wisler, David Stewart
James Mickley, W. Ross White,
Daniel Settle, J. J. Kerr,
John Bender, Andrew Weikert,
John Eckert, Wm. Bigham,
Wm. Funk, John Guinn,
Cornelius Lott, John H. Hoffman,
Wm. Gulden, John N. Boyer,
Wm. Ross.

Also, WIRE TOOTH HAY RAKES, including the celebrated Brandt Rake, and Self-discharging Rakes, also, PLOUGHS, FANNING MILLS, AND FARM IMPLEMENTS GENERALLY.

Persons wishing to examine machines will find them at the warehouse of JOSEPH WIBLE & Sons, Gettysburg, Pa., or at the residence of the subscriber, 2 miles from Gettysburg, on the Harrisburg road. Persons wanting Circulars will address the subscriber, Gettysburg, Pa.

April 23.—t WM. WIBLE, Agent.

STILL AHEAD!

HOFFHEINS'

REAPER & MOWER,

One of the Greatest Machines of the Age.

IS superior to any other Machine now in use, and will excel any that will ever be introduced, having been thoroughly tried and given general satisfaction. I would now inform all those who intend purchasing Machines to call and examine for themselves. This Machine is noted particularly to excel all other machines in strength, durability, ease of draft, and reliability of work, in all kinds of grass and grain. It cuts lodged grain admirably, which is a great item in Machines to a farmer. It can be used as a hand rake as well as a self-raker. It cuts 5 feet 2 inches in grain; 4 feet 10 inches in grass; has a steel cutter bar, with wrought iron guards; it can be used as a Single Mower as well as a Combined Machine.

A full trial of the Machine can be had.

Also, SHIELDS' SELF-DISCHARGING HORSE RAKE, and the great and well-known BRANT RAKE, the best rake ever introduced. We would also call your attention to the IRON DOUBLE SHOVEL PLOUGH, wrought iron frame, very light and strong, steel cutter, easily adjusted to run shallow or deep, and is neatly and tastefully made.

ALSO, THE KEMBLE AND EXCELSIOR FANNING MILL, the old Fanbrough Fan improved, for many years a great favorite among the farmers of Pennsylvania. It is large and strong, has two cockle screens, and warranted to work perfectly.

Also all kinds of FARMING IMPLEMENTS always on hand.

Any person wishing to examine these machines can see them at the Battle-field Hotel, or at my residence, 2 miles from Gettysburg, between the Taneytown road and the Baltimore pike.
